Wether on the ocean or on the Internet, you should never surf alone Before you go online let your parents know what your doing. Its a good idea to have your parents do a little surfing with you they may learn something from you and you may learn something from them. Theyve been screening telemarketers calls for years! Keeping your personnal information private is very important. Your password real name address and phone number should never be given out chat rooms can be a great way to exchange idea with people you dont no but its very important to keep you're identity a secret. In any chat room its' important to be respectful of others views, but offensive messages, called "flames" should never be tolerated. If you are "flamed" play it safe and use the "back" button. Question everything on the internet? many Web sites are reliable. But others have false or misleading information. Make sure the facts can be matched on other cites.

to keep yourself safe you should never agree to meet someone you have met online in person without asking your parent's first. if you do want to meet someone face to face be sure to meet in a public place. And bring a parent along. if this person is truly you're freind he or she will want you to be safe Its important to be cautious because it is easy to pretend to be someone else Online. The Internet can be an important link to the world; but surfing the world safe is important, too
